The address he delivered to me on my accession would lend me to suppose that he considered an American protectorate catabilished at that day. It was a lecture, and not an expression of seasonable sentiment. I did think it a most inconditional sentiment. Not one of the other representatives chose my coronalion day as an occasion for threats and penattics. Again, in October last Mr. Stovens sought audience of me. It is the usual cliquette of Foreign Affairs of the object of the audience, so the sovereign may not be taken by surprise at the presentation of some unsurected matter. The Appearing himister deemed it inconsistent with his idea of courtesy to give any intimation of the cause of his visit. I ruchived him, not withstanding. No sooner that I bowed to him than he gave signs of laboring under strong excitement. He read a paragraph from the Daily Boltein, a thonoidly evening paner.

The Mayor added that he favered the building of the road in two parts, so that work could go on from four points at the same time. If this was done, he thought the whole road could be built within a year.

Commissioner Daiy of the Public Works Department said that the road was going to be the finest thing of its kind in the country. Mr. Paly said:

"There are in the neighborhood of eighty city lots to be acquired, but their cost, I d. not think, will be heavy. The total cost of the road will be $1.500,000."

Brooklyn Anti-Snappers to Investigate Their City Government.

At a meeting of the Brooklyn Democratic Club last night, Edward M. Shepard, who fig-Bred as the leader in the anti-snap movement Bet year, made a significant address. After oulogizing President Cleveland and declaring it the duty of all Democrats to heartly sup-

It the duty of all Democrats to heartily support his Administration, Mr. Shepard said that grave charges had recently been made reflecting on the municipal government in Brooklyn. He also referred to the time of Seth Low's administration and its reputation as the best in the country. He said that the allegations of wrongdoing against the present officials were too grave to be passed over unnoticed, and, on his motion, a committee of five, consisting of A. Augustus Healey, Paniel Moynahan, Everett Green, C. H. Bennett, and George F. Peabody, was chosen to investigate them.

Ex-Secretary Fairchild is to speak before the club on March 20.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.- The steamer St. Paul, the first of the North American Navigation Company's vessels to leave for Panama, sailed to-day with 1,200 tons of miscellaneous freight. The cargo included much wine and dried fruit. The vessel is to connect with the Panama Bailroad, and this is the first blow on this coast to the monopoly of the Pacific Mail on freight by way of the isthmus to New York. The company's dock was crewided with prominent merchants who sympathize with the new move. The next steamer, the Mexico, will sail on the 23d with twice as much cargo. He was one of the leading spirits in the Anti-Snapper Convention, and has long been the warm personal friend of Mr. Cleveland and Postmaster-General Bissoil. About a vear ago Mr. Maxwell was removed from the office of State Insurance Commissioner by tiov. Flower, and at the time it was charged that his removal was due to Mr. Maxwell's friendliness for Mr. Cleveland. The post he will fill will be similar to that formerly occupied by Vice-President Stevenson, and now to be vacated by Mr. P. G. Batthlone of Ohio.

There is great rejoicing here to night among the anti-snapper contingent from New York over the appointment of Robert A. Maxwell to be Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General. They assembled at the Arlington Hotel this evening and held an informal ratification meeting in the reading room adjoining the bar. The leading spirits at the meeting were Congressman Tracey, Maurice J. Power. John Riley, ex-Superintendent Shannagan, William Burch, and William A. Poucher. They congratulated the President, and they congratulated the President, and they congratulated themselves on the fact that Mr. Maxwell is to be the "headsman" of the present Administration. With one of their clan in command of all the Post Offices throughout New York State and also the United States, they do not for one moment imagine that any but true Cleveland men will be placed on duty at the cross-roads Post Offices. Their jollification was not entirely yocal, for at frequent intervals the coming Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General was toasted at the adjacent bar.

THE SCRAMBLE FOR THE SENATE OFFICES.

The Senate will not meet again until Monday. In the mean time the benators appointed by the caucus to arrange the new committee list and decide whether the official forces should be reorganized will have daily sessions. They hardly hope, however, to be ready to report on Monday, and it may be two or three days later before they will complete their work. The committee is meeting with no unusual difficulty in the strangement of a committee slate, but the problem that is causing veration is to decide whether a change in the slective officers of the Senate should be made at present. A large majority of the Senators are in favor of distributing the patronage at once, and it is probable that this will be dobe as soon as the committees are announced. The Senate appointments are the most desirable ones in many ways in Washington. The salaries, as a rule, are larger than those in the departments and the work much less onerous. In addition to this, there are several months in each year when nobody does anything.

The rush and scramble for the possession of these offices is remarkable, and a Senator of these offices is remarkable and a Senator of these offices is remarkable and a Senator of these offices is remarkable for the possession of these offices is remarkable for the possession of these offices is remarkable for the senators are seen anything like it. MC. SHEEHAN A LITTLE SURPRISED.

ME. SHEEHAN A LITTLE SURPRISED.

Now that the President has named Robert Maxwell of Batavia to be Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, there was more or less curiosity inst night among the pollticians who congregated at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and the Hoffman House about the names of the Democrats who are to be honored with high places in New York State. It was said that Smith M. Weed of Plattsburgh was a candidate for Collector of the Port: that William A. Foucher of Oswego was an applicant, and that John D. Kernan of Utica might have the lightning strike him. Mr. Weed was in town and smiled at the idea that he could forsake his business to accept the Collectorship. Mr. Kernan said that he was not a candidate.

Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan, Railroad Commissioner Beardsley of Utica, and others were at the Hoffman House. Mr. Sheehan storped over on his way from Washington. While in the City of Magnilteent Distances he conferred with Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Sheehan was somewhat surprised at the nomination of Mr. Maxwell. He smiled grimly and had nothing to say, Judgo Boardsley was in a similar by diplomatic trame of mind. Mr. Maxwell for a number of years has not been friendly with Senator Hill, Senator Murphy, and Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan.

Headsman Maxwell has in his hands the fate of 3,314 fourth-class Postmasters in the Empire State. The Postmaster-General, Wilson S. Bissell, practically appoints all the Postmasters in the cities of the State. Mr. Bissell has not been friendly to Senator Hill. Senator Murphy, or Lieut. Gov. Sheehan. The nomination of Mr. Maxwell was therefore interesting news to the up-country Democrats who were in town last night.

GEN. COLLINS NOT SURPRISED. He Says His Appointment Was Practically

Settled Some Time Ago. Boston, March 9.-The Hon, Patrick A. Collins, who was to-day nominated as Consul-

General at London, said this afternoon: "Of course, the appointment was not wholly unexpected, but proper courtesy to the appointing power forbade any assumption on my part that it was settled, or indeed any discussion of the matter hitherto. I am now. cussion of the matter hitherto. I am now, however, free to say that it was very early decided upon. Of course, I was in no sense an applicant for that or any place, but when approached on the subject generally I simply named it as the only one I could take. My aversion to official life in Washington was so well known that an early stop was put to any consideration of me for service there. I am as much at home in London as in New York, and shall have to learn no new trade nor new language. I shall probably be obliged to start early next month and my plans have been made accordingly. Now that the deed is done, I confess that I begin to feel a little lone-some."

Brooklyn. He was arrested on Tuesday, charged with abandonment by Barbara Weyhrauch, who with her thirteenth-months-old child is at present living with her parents at 33 Burling stip.

In her affidavit the woman said that she was married to kirwin in May, 1812. She showed the marriage certificate, and claims that kirwin is the father of her child.

The hearing brought out the fact that kirwin had provided a home for the complainant in Brooklyn, and had always treated her kindly, but that some months ago she had left him and gone to live with her parents. She did thus, she said, because she found out that kirwin was seenfulng part of his time with a first wife, whom he had married in 1882, and by whom he has three children. Wife No 1 was before her marriage a Miss Cody, whose father was an east side politician. After hearing this story on Tuesday Justice White held kirwin on a charge of bigamy, giving the complainant until vesterday to produce Wife No. 1 in court. This she faited to do, and the prisoner was discharged.

Crazed by Overwork. Marie Riviere, a Polish widow, came to this city from Paris two years ago, and took a room on the top floor of the six-story rear tenement at 235 East Twenty-second street. She picked up a meagre living by writing for Pollsh and English papers and by giving Polish and English papers and by giving music lessons.

About three months ago she sent for her 18-year-old son, ian, whom she had left behind her in Paris. Since he arrived she has been working almost night and day. Her mind finally gave way, and yesterday afternoon in a fit of insanity she ran to the window of her room with the evident intention of jumping to the yard telow. Her son setzed her and shouted for help, and Mrs. Neff, who lives on the floor below, coaxed her into a closet, where she was locked in until an ambulance came to take her to Hellevue. Mrs. Kiviere wrote for the Moranag Stat, a Pittsburgh paper, which is printed in Polish and English.

THE SENATOR HAS A LONG CONSUL-TATION WITH THE PRESIDENT.

He Declines to Say Anything About the Nature of the Conference-The New York Senators Will Not Seek to Dictate Regarding Patronage - Another Crowd of Office Seekers at the White House, WASHINGTON, March 9. - Senator Hill called to-day upon President Cleveland by appointment. The visit was arranged by Congressman Rockwell a day or two ago, so that when the Senator arrived at the White House this morning, accompanied by Col. John S. Mc-Ewan of Albany, he was at once admitted. al-though the corridor was at the time crowded with those anxious to get the President's ear. This was the flist meeting of these prominent New York Democrata since the evening that Grover Cleveland introduced Senator Hill to a mass meeting of Damocrats at Cooper Union during the Flower campaign a year ago last fall. The conference this morning was a protracted one, lasting for nearly half an hour No one was present except the President and the Senator, and at the conclusion of the talk Mr. Hill rejoined Col. McEwan in Private Secretary Thurber's room and the two gentlemen walked to the Capitol. Nothing can be learned as to what took piace at this important conference, beyond the fact that the Senator's reception was outwardly cordial, and that he and the President talked freely and frankly about both personal and political affairs. Senator Hill declines absolutely to be interviewed about what passed between him and the President, and says that any alleged reports of the conversation must of necessity be mere guess work. Senator Hill has a habit of refusing to take the public into his confidence. even in the most unimportant affairs connacted with his public duties. He refuses perdoes not suit him to talk about what took place between himself and the President today.

The fact that the appointment of Robert A Maxwell to be Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General was sent to the Senate close upon the heels of Senator Hill's visit to the White House, started at once the report that the President took this means of throwing down the gage of battle to the New York Senators and challenging them to come forward and fight the Administration if they think it is best to do so. There is little basis for such an inference as this, however, because the New York Senators say they have no particular objection to Mr. Maxwell, who was originally an appointee of Gov. Hill, and who, both of them say, has since been a political weathercock. The Senators do not say that they will urge the confirmation of Mr. Maxwell's nomination, or that they will oppose it. but they do profess to take very little interest in the matter. It has been known for some time that Mr. Maxwell would be one of the first of President Cleveland's appointees, and it is altogether likely that Senator Hill knew

There was at least one indignant caller today. His hull name is John Gibert Shankiln and his home is in Indiana. As soon as he heard that there was a possibility of ex-Gov. Gray, receiving the Mexican mission Shankiln imped aboard the first train and hurried on to Washington. During his stay here he has done everything in his power to prevent the appointment of Gov. Gray, but even while he was protesting against his appointment as Minister to Mexico an Executive messenger was en route to the Capitol with the nomination of Gov. Gray. Mr. Shanklin's protest came too late, or clee it was not sufficiently regarded by the President to stay the appointment of the ex-Governor from Indiana. At about the same time ex-licepresentative Crosby of Massachusetts was waiting out in the hallway to get an opportunity to tell the President what an admirable Fourth Assistant Postmaster-tieneral he would make. When he at last reached the President the latter could not suppress a smile when he informed "young Crosby" that Mr. Maxwell had been selected for that office Mr. crosby withdrew to consult the "Blue Book" and find another destrable place that might suit his fance.

By selecting Messra, Uniney and Maxwell for Federal appointments the President has inspired the Mugwumps and anti-snappers with new courage. Mr. John P. Brophy of New York tapped gently at the President has inspired the Mugwumps and anti-snappers with new courage. Mr. John P. Brophy is said to be an applicant for a foreign mission.

Ex-licepre-entative Andrew of Massachusetts is becoming a regular visitor at the White House nowadays. He was there again this afternoon, and it is said that he would like to be appointed a member of the Civil Service Commission, so that he may remain in Washington Louding and official status which would be agreeable.

The veteran Gen. Wade Hampton of South Carolina called by special appointment, the was with the President for some time, during which the political situation in South Carolina was freely discussed. Gen. Hampton is one of the leaders of the anti-Tillman movement, and his friends are anxious that he should be provided with a good appointment under the present Administration. It is understood that the President is very fond of the old warrior, and will probably show his friendshir by appointing him Commissioner of Ealiroalt, an easy place, which was formerly held by Gen. "Joe" Johnson of Virginia.

Twice during the Gay the President went down into the East Room to shake the hands of several hundred people who had assembled there. The majority of the callers were ladies, and many of them thought it was necessary for them to stop and enter into conversation with him. One old lady, wearing gold-rimmed everlasses, asked him if it would be possible for her to see Mrs. theyland and the possible for her to see Mrs. theyland and the possible for her to see Mrs. theyland and the baby. The President replied that his wile and taby were at that moment up stairs and could not be seen. The old lady, who was apparently very deaf, put her hand up to her ear and said with a New England twang. "How?" The President was obliged to repeat his answer so loud that it could be heard in every part of the big room. The crowd laughed, and the usher requested the old lady to move on. Even the President smiled as she passed along.

in that Mr. Maxwell would be one of the first of Fresident Cieveland's appointees, and it is altogether likely that Senator Hill knew that the nomination had been decided upon before he left the White House this morning.

There is no truth whatever in the report so widely published to-day that during the brief call of Senator Murphy and Richard Croker upon the President yesterday an agreement was reached by which the Federal patronage is to be divided equally between Tammany and the Anti-Snappers, leaving nothing what ever to the friends of the New York Senators. Senator Murphy said to-day that the visit which he and Mr. Croker paid to the President yesterday lasted just one minute, and that not one single word was said on the subject of politics.

It can be said with positiveness that Senators Hill and Murphy will not thrust them selves upon President Cleveland by asking him for Federal patronage in New York Senators. It can be said with positiveness that Senators will not seek to bring on a fight about the disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they profess to care very little, but should the President feel disposition of offices, for which they pro factorily, and thus far there is no disposition, except on the part of a few new members to depart from the old-established rule of seniority in making up the committees. All of the old Democratic members of the Finance Committee will continue to serve. The Democratical none member to give them a majority, and a new man will take the place of Mr. Carlisle. The majority of the committee, however, will be in favor of free coinage.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. George Grossmith.

A second series of humorous and musical recitals was begun last evening by Mr. Grossmith in Chickering Hall. The general scheme and purpose of the present entertainment is the same as that so favorably made known to us in former ones, yet the songs, jokes, and topics of conversation are all fresh and new. One hardly knows in listening to Mr. Gros-smith's performance, which of the means he adopts is most attractive. There is a certain flattering charm about the confidential way in which he addresses the audience, talking to them so that each person feels himself especially drawn to listen and to respond, with a smile at least. It is excellent enunciation, pleasant voice, and short manner all contribute to make an agreeable impression to which natural gifts are added the accomplishments of a skilled actor and those of a talented musician. Figual with the sense of humor which characterizes Mr. Grossmith appears his remarkable sense of musical form and meaning. He seems to have analyzed music thoroughly—to stand away from it and outside of it, and to understand its architecture even to the minutest detail. Without a true love for the art, and without carnest study of it, such an exhibition of elever imitation as Mr. Grossmith gives when he treats a simple melody in the manner of Mendelssohn, of Mozart Beethoven and Wagner would not be possible. The most personal and intimate idiosyncrasies of these men are caught and travestied as well as their larger traits and peculiarities. But all is done by Mr. Grossmith in the reverse of vuigar, and displays his innate love for music and tis heree. them so that each person feels himself smith with a tender and reverential refinement that is the reverse of vulgar, and displays his innate love for music and its heroes.

If it were possible to say "the best" where all is so good, we should perhaps single out "The recipe for making a French song and "Henry Irving's address to his little dog" as the most racy tiddles in Grossmith's present entertainment. He gives some admirate. cherianment. He gives some admirable piano work in which "technique" is by no means lacking.

The next two recitals are to be given this evening and to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, March D .- At noon to-day Secetary Gresham received the members of the diplomatic corps. The ceremony took place in the diplomatic parlor, pursuant to invitations sent out yesterday. The attendance was large, nearly a hundred of the Ministers and charge d'Affaires, with the Secretaries and attaches of legations, being present. The mem-bers of the Hawaiian Annexation Commission were included in the list of invitations. When Secretary Gresham entered the room the visitors were ranged along the southwest and north sides, according to the seniority of the egations, beginning with the italian Minister. Introductions were made by Assistant Secre tary Wharton. The new Secretary made the tour of the waiting line, shaking each member's hand. After a few words with Paron Fava, dean of the corps, he retired to his room.

Secretary Gresham was attended by Assistant Secretaries Wharton, Adee, and Grinnell. and Private Secretary H. L. Bryan. There were present to witness the reception Judge Hoyne of Chicago, Gen. Mr. Lawler simply directed the attention of Postmaster-General Bissell to the bundle, and it was placed on file. It was said to bear the names of 70,000 citizens of Chicago who favor Mr. Lawler's aspirations. Gen. Carr of Chicago is the most prominent candidate against Mr. Lawler, but he has not yet placed his application on file.

Senator McPherson has issued invitations to the members of the Senate and other well-known public men to meet, at his residence, the new Vice-President, on Wednesday evening, March 15, between 9 and 12 P. M.

Mr. E. C. Benedict of Connecticut, who was at one time prominently mentioned for a place in President Cleveland's Cabinet, left the city to-day. He has been here in the interest of Mr. Penfield of Connecticut, who is desirous of representing the United States as Minister to the Argentine Republic.

Postmaster-General Bissell is accredited with the announcement that no local business men need apply for Post Offices under his administration. He objects to commissioning local business men as l'ostmasters, for the reason that the actual duties are performed by irresponsible and often incompetent clerks and substitutes. Postmasters under Mr. lissell must promise to devote their entire time to the work and personally keep strict office hours.

The last deficiency appropriation bill contains an appropriation of $1,800 for "extraservices" performed by the chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair of the Navy. Commodore Wilson. Constructor Wilson is ill, and has not been at the office for two months or more. He is now in Georgia to recuperate, and during his absence the entire work of the construction department has been performed by Naval Constructor Hichborn, and as the department is now constructor, and as the department is now constructor there is some talk in the Navy Department about a medical examination looking to the retirement of Commodore Wilson.

It is announced unofficially to-night that Secretary Hoke Smith will appoint I. O. C. tains an appropriation of $1,800 for "extra-partment when his father was Secretary.

Josiah Quiner, who has been nominated to be Assistant Secretary of State, and the many ambitious applicants for like places, will be ambitious applicants for like places, will be surprised and disappointed to learn that a provision in the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill knocks $1,000 a year from the salaries of all the assistant secretaryships. This piece of doubtful economy was slipped in by Congressman Dockery, and it is said that even the members of the committee were not aware of what had been done. At present the assistant secretaries in the various departments get $4,500 a year. Hereafter, thanks to Mr. Dockery, they will get $3,500 and. Ferhaps when this fact becomes known some of the numerous applicants may withdraw from the race.
